I can't help but wonder if Daniel was a little afraid as he knelt to pray in Daniel 6:10. The king's decree couldn't be altered, and being caught violating that decree resulted in a death sentence. Personally, I feel it would have been extraordinarily difficult for him not to feel a bit of fear as he knelt to pray. While we can't be certain what Daniel felt, we can be certain he did the right thing.

Staying faithful to Jesus isn't always going to be easy or popular. There may well be times we'll be afraid to do the right thing. In that moment we'll need courage. Courage isn't the absence of fear. Courage is doing the right thing despite being afraid. To be able to courageously live for Jesus, then, we'll need to prepare now. How did Daniel prepare? How are you preparing?

Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down:
for the LORD upholdeth
